

ATLANTA, GA., THURSDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 16 1884.

A DEATHLY STRUGGLE.

ALA., Ala., October 15.—A tragedy un-since the famous riot of 1874, was enacted
a half miles west of the city, by a duel
with knives, between Louis Robinson Hamler, colored. The two men were

There was no good will between the two men on account of Hamiter's alleged illicit relationship with Robinson's wife, and on their way yesterday afternoon, the two men began abusing each other's family, and traveled all the way home. After supper the difficulty, severe abuse was indulged in, and the two men were in a state of the parties were separated by friends sometimes, until nothing would appease them but particularly, as alleged, since Hamilton Robinson on his wife's faithlessness, and resorted to knives. Every effort was made by the combatants, but uselessly, and Robinson, exasperated to frenzy, remarked to his mist: "If you want to cut I am ready," and blow at him. This was enough, as Robinson felt his death wound by a stab in the neck, severed the carotid artery. It was a well-known fact during the progress of the duel that the women had assembled with lighted candles and looked on the awful work of the infighting. After the blow was received by Robinson he walked away about a dozen yards, then he fell dead.

During those twelve years at every breath, and for the first time in his life, he never spoke after receiving his wound. It was not until this happened a runner came to the city and told Sheriff Loug of the killing, and he started out to find Hamiter, who had gone about half a mile from the house of his employer, where he was taken by the sheriff. He was brought to the jail, but Sheriff not being aware of the extent of the injuries until Surgeon Goodwin was summoned to examine him, when it was found that besides the smaller wounds there were two mortal ones, one in the left side, and the other in the back.

"Nordick." A play founded on the German novel entitled "Venus," will be produced by Mr. Frank Mayo at Devere's opera house on the night of the 20th. On the 21st he will produce "Davy Crockett."

There is no occasion to say anything about Mr. Mayo. He is a favorite in every city of the south. His "Davy Crockett" has made him famous. In his new play of "Nordick" he is as satisfactory as he is in "Davy Crockett." The play of "Nordick," however, is much superior to that of "Davy Crockett." It is a work of rugged beauty and genuine dramatic power. The materials of which it is composed are of a heroic, romantic, and heroic, the scenes depicted are by turns stirring, passionate and tender, and in the development of the leading characters there is ample scope for acting of a high order.

The play is sustained by the development of one of the most powerful political intrigues which has ever been presented with equal success upon the stage. There is nothing in "Nordick" that can be said to surpass it in dramatic intensity.

Fine medium dress goods. Silks and velvets are great specialties with us, and we are determined to do a big business here if you appreciate a handsome stock and low prices.

DAVID H. DOUGHERTY,

Spot Cash.

This is the first real indication of fall. We have therefore had ample time to prepare and get our stock in shape for the heavy fall and winter business. You can therefore call on us feeling sure that you will be welcomed by the grandest effort of our lives to please you.

We are going to work this season with a greater determination than ever that it shall be a common saying, around the firesides at night, that "Dougherty's" spot cash house is ahead for reliable goods, fair dealing and low prices it has no rival in the market.

DAVID H. DOUGHERTY,
